Change of Mailing Addresses

You've finally brought in the last carton, the utilities are on, and the Internet is up and running. There's only one thing missing: the mail. Before you can really settle in, you'll have to make sure the Bank has your correct new address. Seasonal addresses can also be established with date ranges if you regularly travel between locations.

A change of address with the United States Postal Service does not mean account statements and other confidential information will be forwarded. They do not forward bank mail.

It is important that the Bank has your most current contact (phone and email) information. We have seen an increase in postal delivery issues (e.g., return mail) and need to be able to contact you if there are any problems with account notifications.

To update your address, phone number, or email, please contact Deposit Operations at 315-797-2761.
